

Abstract

In this paper, an analytic variational iteration method of the social epidemic model is presented to solve the problem in the form of nonlinear initial value problems (IVP) of ordinary differential equations with multiple parameters. The variables of the systems are dependent on time . The model of obesity problem is considered as an application of social epidemic problem. The variational iteration method is used as an analytic method to .solve such model under study